its immediate bearing upon the Chaucer-Petrarch problem which I have been long studying, will justify a double publication, ordinarily unnecessary. I trust the Foreign Accounts roll for the second Italian journey may soon be printed, separately, if the Life Records hang fire.

In my communication to The Nation of Oct. 8th, I have possibly made too much of the Second Italian journey as the real beginning of Chaucers "Italian Period." I still think the theory probable—but post hoc's are specious. Chaucer's "Italian Period" means to me the time when Italian influence was formative in his works; at an earlier time Chaucer may have known something of Italian, certainly knew something of Italy. The growth of such an influence was, probably, gradual, but the time of its florescence into the great Italianate poems appears at once to be short and to follow closely upon the second Italian journey. This alone deserves the name "Italian Period."

NOTES ON HALL'S CONCISE ANGLO-SAXON DICTIONARY.

ERRATA.

TO THE EDITORS OF MOD. LANG. NOTES,

SIRS: I wish to call attention to the following errors that appeared in my articles in the June (No. 6) and Nov. (No. 7) issues of this Journal:

Col. 327, line 13, the brackets should be closed after the interrogation point; same col., note 9, line 6, ðufhammar should read ðufhamar.

Col. 331, note 21^b, line 2, for half read hlaſ; for gespring ende read gesprengedne; line 3, for halfa read hlaſa; line 5, for gebegeðne read gebegedne; line 7, for gesprengende read gesprengedne; for klafa read hlaſa.

Col. 332, line 17, for hylstēne read hylsteñe; same col., note 23^b, line 1, for hylleshama read hyllehama.

Col. 333, line 11, for teðridtid read teðridtid; line 12, for ð read ð.

Col. 333, note 25, line 5, for t esca, t iscia read t esca, t iscia.

Col. 413, line 20, read Hall for Hal.

Col. 413, note 42, read t æfnung for t æfnung.

Col. 414, line 25 read bad for baed.

Col. 414, note 44, read WW. 479, 17, as is correctly printed in note 46.

Col. 416, note 47, line 4, read botriones for botrognes.

Col. 417, line 9, read t eahtho for t eahtho; also lines 12 and 14, t should read t, being the abbreviation of uel.

Supplementary to what I have said (Col. 415) on Hall's entry gripu 'Kettle, caldron,' I wish to draw attention to the German dialect (Wirz-burg) forms krodeln, krödeln, krötteln, denoting the boiling of sausages or sausage-meat in a particular kind of caldron. Hence the fork or hook, by means of which meat or sausages are fished out of the caldron, is called crodal in OHG.¹ In regard to the conclusion at which I have arrived on col. 418, concerning Sweet's grundsopa having no standing in Anglo-Saxon, I may add, that what we find WW. 717, 36, hoc abdomen grundsopa is very likely hoc abdomen glundrope, that is, gelund rope; cp. WW. 150, 14 renunculi lundagan; WW. 159, 6 abdomen hrysel uel gelend uel swind uel swines smere; rope, of course, stands in the old sense of 'bowel' and is also to be restored in WW. 679, 9 hec colera the ersope; that is, ers rope, which, in meaning, is practically identical with hic cirbus A^r harstharme; that is, ars tharme, representing a German Arschdarm.

VERSTECKENS SPIELEN.

TO THE EDITORS OF MOD. LANG. NOTES,

SIRS:—Prof. Thomas in his Practical German Grammar, p. 200, speaks of the word Versteckens in the phrase, Versteckens spielen, as "a genitive difficult to classify." Grimm, Sanders, and Heyne offer no explanation. In Heidelberg the little children can be heard to say distinctly: "Nu, spiele wir verstecke'ns." This is certainly Süddeutsch for, "Nun, spielen wir verstecken uns;" which has been contracted into Versteckens, as in Kotzebue's Kleinstädter, iv, 7: "Geschwind noch einmal versteckens gespielt." Thus what appears to be a genitive is merely a verb and its object.
